Submission Requirements

The JHR requires that all authors submit all manuscripts online. Please submit online at: http://jhr.msubmit.net.

Do not send submissions directly to the Editor, Coeditors, Managing Editor, or Editorial Office. Failure to submit online will only delay consideration. Please submit here: http://jhr.msubmit.net.

Please see the submission website for information about the submission fee.

Please note that the JHR rarely considers submissions that have more than 35 pages of text, excluding tables, figures, and references. Appendices with additional material may be submitted for consideration by editors and reviewers. An informational website with tables of contents, abstracts, and appendixes: www.ssc.wisc.edu/jhr

If you have difficulty submitting online, please contact JHR Managing Editor, Lisa Al-Amoodi <lalamoodi@wisc.edu>

JHR Policy on Replication and Data Availability

1. Manuscripts submitted to the JHR will be judged in part by whether they have reconciled their empirical results with already published work on the same topic.
2. Authors of accepted manuscripts will be asked to make their data available to other analysts from a date six months after JHR publication for a period of three years thereafter. Exemption from this requirement may be requested.
3. The JHR will consider replication, fragility, and sensitivity studies of empirical work that has appeared in the JHR in the last five years or empirical work judged by the editors to be important to the fields covered by the JHR.
4. A more detailed statement is available from the Managing Editor, Social Science Building, University of Wisconsin, 1180 Observatory Drive, Madison, WI 53706; lalamoodi@wisc.edu
Jan Levine Thal, long-time Managing Editor of the Journal of Human Resources, retires this fall. She was recruited in 1985 to replace then-retiring Barbara Dennis. Jan has a bachelor’s degree from Harvard University, and master’s degrees from Northwestern University and the University of Wisconsin–Madison. Jan is an active member of the Madison community, including serving currently as the Artistic Director of Kathie Rasmussen Women’s Theatre and previously as the President of the Board of Directors of Madison’s community radio station, WORT-FM.

Jan’s knowledge, skills, and commitment have been of invaluable help to the journal’s past and current editors. Jan has shepherded the journal through the dramatic revolution in scholarly publishing brought on by the information age. She began the position working on a typewriter and mailing hard-copy manuscripts for review and proofing. She concluded her tenure at the journal managing approximately 1000 online manuscript submissions annually and publishing the journal in print and online for thousands of readers worldwide.

The editorial board extends its thanks to Jan for her commitment to ensuring excellence and timeliness in publishing, as well as her dedication to assisting the editorial board in managing peer review with diplomacy and grace. Jan’s outstanding work has contributed to the success and reputation of the journal. We are grateful and wish her well.

The Journal of Human Resources is among the leading journals in empirical microeconomics. Intended for scholars, policy makers, and practitioners, each issue examines research in a variety of fields including labor economics, development economics, health economics, and the economics of education, discrimination, and retirement. Founded in 1965, the JHR features articles that make scientific contributions in research relevant to public policy practitioners.
